GOLF COURSE PLANNING & MANAGEMENT EXPERIENCE:

Edward Wankel has been a park and recreation professional for over thirty years. During his thirty-year career, he has taken a special interest in the game of golf and has made numerous contributions to promote the game, expand public golf opportunities, and improve existing facilities, as well as providing new facilities for the public golfer as follows:

- Deputy Commissioner of the New York State Department of Parks, Recreation and Historic Preservation from April 1995 to January 1, 1999.

- U.S. Open

Edward Wankel was the primary player for the State of New York in the solicitation and negotiation with the USGA to bring the U.S. Open to Bethpage Black in 2002.

On August 20, 1996, the USGA and Governor George Pataki announced that the U.S. Open championship would be contested on the legendary Black Course in 2002. Under Mr. Wankel's direction the Black Course was completely restored during 1997/98 and was reopened to the public on June 10, 1998. The restoration plan was prepared by renowned golf course architect Rees Jones and all work completed by the USGA at no cost to the State of New York. Mr. Wankel ensured that the historic nature of the course was preserved and the original features of A.W. Tillinghast's 1934 design restored for future generations of golfers to marvel at. His concern for the needs of the public golfer was reflected in his insistence that all tee boxes be restored during the Black Course restoration, not just the championship tees. As a result, the public golfer has been given a U.S. Open course with recreational features golfers of every ability can enjoy.

- Golfers with Special Needs

During 1998, under Mr. Wankel's direction, new golf professional contracts were awarded at Sunken Meadow and Bethpage Park golf facilities. Mr. Wankel made sure that those new contracts had clear provisions for the inclusion of junior golf programs and opportunities for women, minority and physically challenged golfers. He introduced golf cars at Sunken Meadow for the first time, and expanded cart access at Bethpage to include the Green Course and made provisions for carts for the physically challenged.

- Commissioner of Parks, Recreation and Conservation for Suffolk County, New York

As Commissioner, Edward Wankel was responsible for the development of a public/private partnership for the restoration and revitalization of the Bergen Point Country Club in Babylon, New York.

- Commissioner of Parks, Recreation and Cultural Affairs for the Town of Islip

When Mr. Wankel was appointed first as deputy commissioner in 1973, there were no public golf courses owned and operated by the Town of Islip. When he left as commissioner of the department in 1992 to take a new position in Suffolk County, Islip had three public courses, primarily due to the efforts of Edward Wankel.

- Brentwood Country Club

The Town of Islip with the encouragement of Mr. Wankel purchased Brentwood Country Club in 1973. He then went on to oversee the renovation of the course and its ancillary facilities and opened it to the public in 1974.

- Gull Haven Golf Course

Gull Haven Golf Course is a nine-hole facility that was once part of the Central Islip State Hospital.

When the Town of Islip first took over this facility, it was part of the New York Institute of Technology's holdings. Under the guidance of Mr. Wankel, the Town of Islip operated Gull Haven under a management agreement. Now Gull Haven is owned and operated by the Town of Islip Department of Parks, and has been preserved for the public golfers as the result of Mr. Wankel's earlier efforts.

- Holbrook Country Club

In 1986, Mr. Wankel recognized that the demand for golf in the Town of Islip could not be met by the existing facilities.

In 1987, Mr. Wankel started a process that resulted in the construction of a new eighteen-hole championship golf course known as the Holbrook Country Club. P.J. Cowan, the winner of the 1997 and 1998 New York State Open Championships, calls Holbrook Country Club his home course. This course opened to the public in the spring of 1992, shortly after Mr. Wankel left for his new position in Suffolk County.
